

In The Cool Forgetting of The Morning

it begins to slip away the waiting in the dark meeting between a memory unknowingly, unseeingly what was held in the palm of something lost long ago falling in and out but too far beyond yet maybe now and in the passing of all things it is morning

I will let myself forget